VISIT TO JUBIN SPASTIK HOME 'God's Own Ambassadors'

People who are beautiful physically, They attract attentions. People who are beautiful mentally. They attract our all body sensations.

The day was really special Full of joy and miracle, To my sense of humor and laughter, It really tackled.

We went to Jubin spastic Home, What is Life? It was clearly shown. In this bony Sri Ganganagar Skeleton The students were forming the backbone.

They were real heroes, Who were fighting against their disabilities. And making them zeroes, Riding on a ship like real boaters.

Amongst Almighty's wonderful creations They, lost in the enigma of emotions, Even if there are people to show them night mare We were feeling very happy showing our love and care.

Every single second their thought changes, Their look has a complexity of a million mazes Loitering aimlessly in the aim in this ambitious world, They have many a thought that can't be told.

God, the creator can't come down to make things better, Joining hands to help them would make us do service as 'God's Own Ambassadors'

Once I was a little canary

Chirruping, Hopping, balcony to balcony,
Singing my own song with my Buddy,

We were inseparable,
as if conjoined together,
Just her and me,
Never wanted anyone else,

I had an Angel,
Loved me more than anyone ever did,
I wandered all day around him,
He was my Lavender,
I, his bumble bee,
Down to dusk,
Buddy and I fought for him,
Who loved him more?
Was the question.

He gave me something I never got,
Something a kid should never crave for,
'A father's Love, his care, his affection,

Then came a storm,
The drops of rain,
Mixed with tears,
The sound of their breath,
In my ears,
Couldn't find them,
Not even once,

I stand here all alone,
Watching the sun set,
So the night could fall,
No buddy, no Angel, No One,
One left to build her nest,
Another for peaceful and eternal west....

Empty sounds of wind,
Gradually turn into a storm,
I'll use all my strength
To make through,
And when the winds calm,
I'll smile like you used to.....
